University of California, Santa Cruz Critical Race and Ethnic Studies- Assistant/Associate Professor of Black Studies

The Critical Race and Ethnic Studies Program [https://cres.ucsc.edu/] at the University of California, Santa Cruz (UCSC) invites applications for the position in Black Studies at the early Associate Professor (with tenure) or advanced Assistant Professor level (tenure-track). We seek an interdisciplinary scholar in any area of Black Studies who has a commitment to programmatic and curricular development and supervision at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, and community engagement. We especially welcome applications from scholars whose approach to Black Studies pushes the boundaries of the fields they inhabit; asks provocative questions; and contests norms of knowledge production. The hire will be expected to teach in and contribute to the development of the new, undergraduate Black Studies minor. Like the Black Studies minor, the Critical Race and Ethnic Studies program (CRES) was created through student activism. The fastest-growing major in the Humanities Division, CRES is also a vibrant program on the level of faculty research. Though the Critical Race and Ethnic Studies Program is located in the Humanities Division, the candidate’s departmental affiliation is open to departments in the Arts Division (for example, Film and Digital Media, History of Art and Visual Culture) and Social Sciences Division (for example, Anthropology, Latin American and Latino Studies, Politics, Sociology), in addition to the Humanities Division (for example, Feminist Studies, History, History of Consciousness, Literature, or Philosophy).

UCSC is a majority-minority campus. We therefore welcome candidates who understand the barriers facing women and minorities who are underrepresented in higher education careers (as evidenced by life experiences and educational background), and who have experience in equity and diversity with respect to teaching, mentoring, research, life experiences, or service towards building an equitable and diverse scholarly environment.

This position carries a five-course equivalency workload, which normally means teaching four courses scheduled over three quarters and carrying other academic and service responsibilities to the department, division, and campus. Candidates should be prepared to teach regularly in both large lecture (such as Introduction to Black Studies) and advanced seminar course formats, in the core curriculum of the CRES program as well as in the undergraduate and graduate programs of their home department.
